Any changes to the original specifications are to be done after clarification with the Client. If the Client wishes to invoke the guarantee, the Client must notify Modis as soon as it becomes apparent that the employee has inadequate qualifications.

The guarantee applies regardless of whether a breach of contract exists, ref. Section 14 below.

Modis guarantees that the employees at a minimum work under the wage and working conditions in accordance with the ¹Working Environment Act's rules on equal treatment. If any errors are discovered, Modis shall, after clarification with the Client, make up the difference as soon as possible.

The Client should review the order confirmation and inform Modis, without undue delay, of any errors or omissions.

4.3 Changes

The Client may not agree to changes in the assignment directly with Modis's employees without written agreement with Modis.

The same applies if changes in the specific assignment entitle the employee to better conditions under the equal treatment rules. If the Client has not provided accurate and complete information or the Client has not informed the Provider about relevant changes in its own wage and working conditions within a reasonable period of time, Modis may change the price retroactively and require corresponding arrears.

In the event of changes in laws or regulations or orders from public authorities resulting in increased costs for Modis, Modis may adjust the price and/or other terms corresponding to the increase in costs for the individual assignment. The Client may require the additional costs to be documented. The adjustment goes into effect from the date the law, regulations or orders comes into force.

Ordinary price regulation takes place in January each year.

In addition, any additional rights under equal treatment rules are billed, including holiday compensation and paid holidays, ref. Section 5.1 above.

In addition, current general terms and conditions for recruitment services apply as far as they are appropriate. LINK
